

"Adventures in Colour" @ ATWELL SUMMER SCHOOL, 2018

Pam Lockwood says

"I am very passionate about my art and love to explore colour and light in my work. Although most people think of me as a watercolourist, my artistic world truly exploded when I started experimenting with colourful abstract acrylics....."

If you want to have fun with colour and let your creative spirit run wild, then this workshop is for you.

Colourful Abstract Acrylics

My abstracts are all about colour with light. Many of them have dribbles and spatter, some are done layer on layer and still others created by pouring paint.

In this experimental workshop I'm looking to do a little of each of my styles so bring several canvases along with your favourite colours and brushes, palette knives and anything else you like to paint with.

Saturday and Sunday, 13 and 14 January 2018, 10am – 3:30pm each day
