

Creativity is a magical time for children.

After being introduced to a concept their natural exuberance, insatiable curiosity and boundless imagination dives right in. They love to play with ideas – open them up, see how they can be changed, take it apart, flow naturally to another direction, come back to it.

All the time, their wondrous brains are churning ideas, their confidence grows, they meet their challenges, they discover and grow their capabilities.

They can be happy investigating by themselves, their innocence and “new-ness” to the world keeps them questing for more.

Children also love to share their creativity with others, swapping and building stories while they explore and create, giving and receiving their joy in endless mutuality.

So, enjoy the Melting Pot of discoveries that creativity has to offer!
