Ella says

Lately I've been shaped by the challenge of living a 'curious and experimental' life. To not let a day go past without trying something new, Taking a different path and permitting myself to see things in a new way, setting aside a little time for play. The world is responding 'cos I keep seeing shape, colour, form and humour in everything. So much of what I treasure, value and aspire to can be achieved by following through on curiosity .....
